Event Information:

Venue set up as pre-covid with seating in link bar, LFS and CT foyer - we tried to get the house early at 1930 however the SM requested this be 1940 to allow for last minute rehearsals - this presented a problem for those patrons who had bought a beverage from the bar and all tables/chairs were occupied and they had to be seated to drink and they couldn't enter the venue - suggest that more table/chairs be provided or at least chairs. The couches didn't allow for social distancing as patrons sat back to back, so suggest these be moved and/or markers on couches to ensure distancing; Scanning in to venue at glass doors presents a huge backlog of patrons, and this process needs to be reviewed to assist usher staff and ensure the show commences on time as despite ringing the bells every 5 minutes patrons still did not move to doors until two minutes before commencement of show - we also had difficulty with patrons not listening to requests to physical distance; Patrons were extremely rude to staff who advised they had to be seated to consume alcohol, and we need more staff if we are to monitor the COVID plan of physical distancing and not consuming drinks when standing. Patron bought a bottle of champagne and tried to exit the venue and drink this in civic square, we set up a table on the terrace so they could sit outside; Post show LFS doors and emergency exits propped open to assist with flow but difficult for ushers to have patrons maintain physical distancing as leaving the venue; Post show function held in green room, bar closed at 2300 last pax at 2333

This afternoon we started scanning patrons who had physical tickets upon entry to alleviate congestion at the glass doors, this helped a lot with load-in as many of the patrons could go straight through because they had already been signed in.

A few patrons complained about it being warm in the theatre in balcony one, after discussing with BOH, Stage door noticed and tried to cool the auditorium down to no avail.

Event Information:

The 1000 show had a patron with a guide dog, the group were seated in [REDACTED]. A tradesman with a ladder and tools came into the foyer a short time after the show had begun. As I had not been informed of any scheduled maintenance, I escorted him to Stagedoor to see if it was back of house who needed him. After a brief conversation it became clear that he was not doing work here. He was dropping off a set of car keys to his boss, who was watching the show, and was meant to get more information about where his next job was, however initially he assumed his work was at Canberra Theatre. He left the car keys at Box Office where the boss picked them up and then left the venue.

The 1400 show we saw a number of patrons who had tickets with old seat numbers that were able to be scanned by the scanning devices. As such, a few patrons have been moved: [REDACTED] moved to [REDACTED] moved to [REDACTED] moved to [REDACTED] moved to [REDACTED] moved to [REDACTED]. General Comments/Learnings from this event to improve procedures:

[REDACTED] first arrived around 1730 just as the show was starting, after talking with them and providing them with the documents they asked for, they left saying they would return for the load in of the second show. Their comments were positive and they have left us some signage for a campaign Access Canberra is running regarding fire exits.

For the second show, the officers observed the patrons entering CTC and then into the Canberra Theatre. They were happy with what they saw. The first of their two notes was that they noticed patrons taking sips of their drinks on the way to the venue but recognised that bar staff and foyer ushers told every patron that they must refrain from drinking standing up and were very quick to issue reminders to any patron who may have not understood the initial instructions, overall they were satisfied with how this was handled. The second point was asking if we have announcements regarding physical distancing, I clarified that FOH managers remind patrons to physically distance on their PA announcements and there is a pre-recorded announcement at the end of the performance within the auditorium itself. The officers were satisfied with how they heard and saw our staff conduct themselves with regards to out Covid safe plan and patron services.

Canberra Theatre Centre Administration Covid -19

Operational Procedure

Staff:

- Workspaces in the administration area may be occupied concurrently, particularly noting that the layout means that persons occupying the desks are facing away from each other as well as achieving the 1.5m separation.
- The round tables in the centre of the Education and Marketing work areas may be used for a maximum of three persons, evenly spaced.
- The Board Room may be used for a maximum of five persons, ensuring 1.5m separation between seats on each side of the table, and not facing anyone directly across the table.
- The lounge seats in the reception area may be used by a maximum of two persons – one on the couch and one on one of the two armchairs only.
- All single occupant offices can accommodate one to two persons – one at the desk, and one in a visitor's chair opposite providing both do not lean forward at the same time.
- Only one person is permitted in the administration lift at any one time.
- Only one person is permitted in the kitchen at any one time. Care should be taken not to crowd the corridor outside. Put used crockery, cutlery etc straight in the dishwasher yourself after use. Do not handle anyone else's dirty items.
- Before emptying the dishwasher, hands should be sanitised.
- Only two persons in the photocopy / file room at a time.
- Incidental proximity, e.g. passing in the corridor, walking past desks, is acceptable. Make every effort not to touch each other, or cough or breathe in the direction of another person. Note that there is insufficient separation to lean on a low partition and talk to occupants of a desk (e.g. Education, Venue Ops, Marketing, PA to the Director).
- If visiting anyone in an office that leads to a corridor, you must not linger and obstruct the path of others.
- In the toilets, use of both cubicles (female) or cubicle and urinal (male) concurrently is acceptable due to the high partitions. However, only one person at a time should occupy the open area at the hand basin. Care should be taken not to brush past another in the doorway, and not to crowd the corridor outside.
- Minimise sharing of equipment (e.g. phones - including mobiles – computer keyboards, car keys etc). If any equipment needs to be shared, sanitise before and after each use.
- Sanitising Spray and/or wipes will be provided throughout the office area, and in the car.
- When using the company car, you must sanitize all touch points (steering wheel, door handle, etc) after use.
- And remember the general recommendation – if you don't feel well, stay away.

All communications must take into account accessibility, ensuring CTC message is able to be understood by everyone in our diverse community. This will include:

- Hearing Impaired.
- Sight Impaired.

Emergency Evacuation.

The need for physical distancing creates significant challenges when planning to evacuate a crowd during an emergency. External emergency evacuation assembly points will need to be able to accommodate the patrons / performers while maintaining distancing between unrelated groups.

NB: The goal of maintaining distancing between people becomes a secondary consideration if there is a clear and imminent danger requiring an emergency evacuation. Emergency exit plans should reflect that moving patrons away from the most urgent hazard is the priority.

Patron Compliance

- It is the responsibility of the individual patron to ensure they observe physical distancing protocols as directed by the Australian, State and Territory Governments. Individuals are liable for fines if they do not comply with restrictions placed by the appropriate Chief Health Officer.
- CTC should have the right to refuse entry or ask a patron to leave if they are not complying with the published terms and conditions of venue entry including safety regulations. Venue terms and conditions with specific COVID related terms can be found on the CTC website.

GUIDANCE FOR POTENTIAL, SUSPECTED OR CONFIRMED CASES OF COVID-19 IN THE WORKPLACE

(UPDATED AS AT 3 August 2020)

The purpose of this document is to describe the immediate actions that a workplace needs to reduce the risk of exposure to, or transmission of, the virus in the event that a worker in the workplace develops COVID-19 symptoms, is diagnosed with COVID-19, or are directed to quarantine.

This guidance needs to be considered in conjunction with directorate COVID safe plans and workplace risk assessments.

The situation in the ACT

The expanded testing criteria outlined by ACT Health means that the majority of people now being tested for COVID-19 have a low probability of returning a positive test result. This is because people with relevant symptoms but no epidemiological risk factors (such as close contact with a known case or travel to a COVID-19 hotspot) are being routinely tested.

Workplaces must ensure that work areas are cleaned daily and reinforce the requirement for workers to clean their personal work areas regularly.

Case definitions

Confirmed case: According to the national COVID-19 guideline, a confirmed case of COVID-19 is person who tests positive for SARS-CoV-2 (the virus that causes COVID-19) on a specific validated test.

Suspect case: According to the national COVID-19 guideline, a suspect case of COVID-19 is someone who has symptoms of COVID-19 (such as fever, cough, sore throat, shortness of breath, loss of smell or loss of taste) and at least one epidemiological risk factor for COVID-19 exposure (including recent overseas or interstate travel, close contact with a confirmed COVID-19 case, or work in a healthcare setting with direct patient contact).

Potential case: For the purposes of this document, a “potential COVID-19 case” is defined as someone who has symptoms of COVID-19 (such as fever, cough, sore throat, shortness of breath, loss of smell or loss of taste) but no epidemiological risk factors for COVID-19 exposure (see above).

Person in quarantine: A person in quarantine is someone who has potentially been exposed to COVID-19 and is required to stay isolated at home for 14 days to see if they develop symptoms. Quarantine in the ACT is mandatory for people who have recently returned from overseas, recently been to an interstate hot spot, or had close contact with a confirmed COVID-19 case.

COVID-19 in the workplace

If a worker is unwell or has symptoms of COVID-19 (e.g. dry cough, fever, sore throat, shortness of breath, loss of sense of smell or taste), they must not attend the workplace. Workers must notify their manager immediately.

Regardless of the circumstances, workers who are being tested for COVID-19 due to having relevant symptoms must stay at home until their symptoms resolve and follow the advice given to them by ACT Health.

The ACT Public Service needs to be ready to respond to the following scenarios:

- A worker develops COVID-19 symptoms but has no known risk factors for COVID-19 exposure (i.e. the worker is a potential case);
- A worker develops COVID-19 symptoms and has a risk factor for COVID-19 exposure (i.e. the worker is a suspect case);
- A worker is directed to quarantine; or
- A worker is diagnosed with COVID-19 (i.e. the worker is a confirmed case).

Risk assessments

To reduce the risk of exposure to, or transmission of, the virus at work, when a workplace is notified of any of the above scenarios, they must consider the risk to the workplace and other workers through a risk assessment, and take reasonably practicable steps to reduce the risk.

Managers need to consider where the worker is currently working, whether they have been in contact with others at work, and the individual circumstances of the situation.

For further advice or if a workplace is unsure of the level of risk or the type of case that has been reported by a worker, the workplace should consult with the ACT COVID-19 helpline (8am-8pm) on 02 6207 7244. Where ACT Health provides advice to a workplace, this advice must be documented in the workplace risk assessment and followed.

Where a worker is diagnosed with COVID-19

Where a worker advises that they are a confirmed case of COVID-19, managers must speak with the worker and with ACT Health using the COVID-19 helpline, to understand the level of risk to others in the workplace, and the response required by the workplace. If the individual attended work while they were infectious, ACT Health will liaise directly with the workplace to identify details for contact tracing and to advise on any follow-up required such as cleaning or the management of close contacts.

Any advice received from ACT Health or Worksafe ACT must be included within the assessment and followed in the workplace.

The worker must follow the advice of, and cooperate with, ACT Health. This includes instructions to self-isolate and to not attend their workplace or any other public locations. The worker must keep the manager regularly updated on the advice given to them to reduce the exposure to or transmission of the virus to others at work. If a worker is working onsite at an ACTPS premise at the time of being informed of their diagnosis, or worked at an ACTPS premise in the 72 hours prior to the onset of symptoms, the manager should:

- isolate the worker from others and arrange for the worker to immediately leave the workplace safely, preferably using a personal mode of transport. If the employee is reluctant to leave the workplace, they can be directed to do so (authority provided under the Work Health and Safety Act 2011 and section 9(1)(c) of the Public Sector Management Act 1994).

- quarantine any areas used by the worker until advice is received from ACT Health on cleaning requirements
- ask the worker to seek advice from ACT Health or their medical practitioner, to follow this advice, and to regularly keep in touch with their manager.

Once the worker has safely left the workplace, the manager must contact relevant directorate/agency Human Resources (HR)/Corporate areas to notify them of the confirmed case, consider the risks, and arrange appropriate actions based on the level of risk, such as recording close contacts, quarantining areas of the workplace and arranging cleaning. The actions required to reduce the risk will be dependent on the advice received by ACT Health, the workplace risk assessment and the circumstances of the case (e.g. size of potential contamination, contact with others). The workplace must follow any instructions given to them by ACT Health.

Cleaning must be conducted in accordance with the SafeWork Australia COVID-19 cleaning guidelines and with any advice provided by ACT Health. The manager or worker must complete and submit an online work incident report if the worker has been working in a location out of their home during their infectious period (defined as while they were experiencing symptoms, or in the 48 hours prior to developing symptoms).

HR/Corporate must consider whether a notification to WorkSafe ACT is required. If the incident is notifiable, a notification must be made immediately after the workplace becomes aware of the incident by submitting the online incident notification template and identifying the incident as a 'notifiable incident' or by calling the ACT Government call centre on 13 22 81. During COVID-19, incidents are notifiable if:

- it is suspected that a person may have contracted COVID-19 and requires treatment in hospital; or
- meets the prescribed serious illness from within the workplace.

HR/Corporate should also consider what other actions required, such as the need to notify building management and co-tenants of a confirmed case of COVID-19 when located in a shared building.

The worker must not return to work at an ACTPS premise without advice from ACT Health that they can be safely released from isolation. ACT Health will provide all confirmed cases with a clearance letter stating that they have recovered from COVID-19 and have been released from isolation. The worker must speak with their manager prior to returning to work at an ACTPS premise.

Where a worker advises that they have symptoms of COVID-19

Where a worker advises that they have developed symptoms that could be consistent with COVID-19, the workplace should assess whether they have any epidemiological risk factors for COVID-19 (making them a suspect case) or not (making them a potential case).

If a worker is a suspect case

Where a worker advises of circumstances that indicate they are a suspect case of COVID-19, they must get tested for COVID-19 and isolate at home until they receive their test result. Their manager should speak with the worker to understand the level of risk and the response required by the workplace.

Any advice received from ACT Health or WorkSafe ACT included within the assessment and followed. The ACT COVID-19 Helpline (8am-8pm) on 02 6207 7244 should be contacted where further advice is required to manage the risk.

Where a worker is working onsite at an ACTPS premise, the manager must:

- isolate the worker from others and ask them to immediately leave the workplace safely, preferably using a personal mode of transport. If the worker is reluctant to leave the workplace, they can be directed to do so (authority provided under the Work Health and Safety Act 2011 and section 9(1)(c) of the Public Sector Management Act 1994).
- consider whether the area used by the worker needs to be quarantined until the daily workplace clean, an immediate routine clean should take place, or further cleaning should be requested
- ask the worker to seek advice from ACT Health or their medical practitioner, to follow this advice, and to stay in touch with their manager about the advice regarding staying at home or returning to the workplace.

Once the worker has safely left the workplace, the manager must contact relevant HR/Corporate areas to notify them of the suspected case, consider the risks, and arrange appropriate actions to reduce the risks based on the documented risk assessment.

HR/Corporate must consider whether a notification to WorkSafe ACT is required. If the incident is notifiable, a notification must be made immediately after the workplace becomes aware of the incident by submitting the online incident notification template and identifying the incident as a 'notifiable incident' or by calling the ACT Government call centre on 13 22 81. During COVID-19, incidents are notifiable if:

- it is suspected that a person may have contracted COVID-19 and requires treatment in hospital; or
- where there is a confirmed case of COVID-19 that is reliably attributable to a worker carrying out work that involves providing care or treatment to a person; or contact with human blood or bodily substances.

Whether cleaning or other actions are required will be dependent on the advice provided by ACT Health, WorkSafe ACT, the workplace risk assessment and the circumstances of the case (e.g. size of potential contamination, contact with others). Cleaning must be conducted in accordance with the SafeWork Australia COVID-19 cleaning guidelines and with any advice provided by ACT Health.

If a worker is a potential case

Where a worker advises of circumstances that indicate they are a potential case of COVID-19, they must seek testing for COVID-19 and ensure that they follow any advice from the testing centre or their general practitioner.

Workers who are awaiting test results must stay at home until their symptoms have resolved and they receive a negative test result.

Workers must keep their manager regularly updated and follow any instructions in relation to work arrangements. Where a worker has recovered from their symptoms and received a negative test result, they must speak to their manager before attending the workplace so the manager can assess the risk for the workplace and other workers.

Managers should speak with the worker to understand the level of risk and the response required by the workplace including:

- whether the work area used by the worker needs to be quarantined until the next daily clean or whether an immediate routine clean should be conducted to reduce the risk
- any other factors that may change the risk, such as the presence of vulnerable workers in the workplace.

Where a worker is directed to quarantine

Where a worker advises that they have been directed to quarantine by ACT Health or another authority (e.g. NSW Health), but are asymptomatic, they must follow all advice provided by the health authority. Workers must keep their manager regularly updated about the advice given to them about their quarantine period.

Where a worker is working onsite at an ACTPS premise, the manager must:

- isolate the worker from others and ask them to immediately leave the workplace safely, preferably using a personal mode of transport. If the worker is reluctant to leave the workplace, they can be directed to do so (authority provided under the Work Health and Safety Act 2011 and section 9(1)(c) of the Public Sector Management Act 1994).

If the worker subsequently develops symptoms, they must get tested for COVID-19. If they attended the workplace within 72 hours prior to developing symptoms, they should notify their workplace and the workplace should follow the advice detailed above under “Where a worker is a suspect case”.

If the worker is then diagnosed with COVID-19, they must notify their workplace, who must follow the advice detailed above under “Where a worker is diagnosed with COVID-19”.

Working from home arrangements

Where a worker is already working from home and develops symptoms, gets directed to quarantine, or is diagnosed with COVID-19, the manager must speak with the worker to understand the level of risk and the response required by the workplace. Managers must also consider other risks such as the safety of the home environment for work and supporting the mental health of the worker.

The manager should consider whether establishing a working from home arrangement is reasonably practicable if the worker is feeling well during a period of being directed by ACT Health to quarantine or isolate at home. Where it is not reasonably practicable for a worker to be provided with a working from home arrangement, the manager and the worker should discuss appropriate leave arrangements. Where a manager is unsure what leave is appropriate, they should liaise with their relevant HR/Corporate area for further advice.

Where the situation is unclear

For situations where the actions required to reduce the risk are not clear, workplaces must:

- conduct and document a risk assessment, including other factors that impact on the level of risk;

- seek advice from ACT Health by calling the ACT COVID-19 Helpline (8am-8pm) on 02 6207 7244 if they are unsure how to manage the risk;
 - document and follow any advice from ACT Health on managing the case;
 - regularly review their risk assessment and amend controls as required.

Leave arrangements

Workplaces should review the COVID leave arrangements to determine what type of leave should be accessed by workers in those scenarios listed above.
